The Great Settlement

No greater day's work was ever done by the two houses of Congress than that of Saturday last The passage over the President's veto of the Southern Reconstruction bill and the bill regulating the tenure of office by both houses seemed to be impossibilities on Saturday morning, but in addition to these important bills, the Bankrupt bill, a great and beneficent measure, and a little tariff bill on wool, and a variety of other things were pushed through The great settlement of the Southern difficulty, however, in connection with other measures previously added to the general status of the United States, will give to the expiring, Thirty ninth Congress its distinguishing place in our national history

On the 1st of December, 1865, when this Congress first assembled, President Johnson was master of the situation and might have remained so but for the busy, buzzing outside politicians that were beginning with their flatteries to catch his ear to the exclusion of better advisers The experiments of Southern reconstruction upon which he had ventured during the long Congressional recess of nine months were submitted to the discretion of Congress, but in the famous 22d of February speech, the beginning of a rupture was proclaimed from the White House From that day, cautiously, for some time profoundly by gradual approaches in pursuit of a new party, Mr Johnson at length took a bold and decided position against Congress in his celebrated Philadelphia National Convention fiasco of August last In the succeeding autumnal State elections his corporal's guard of republican followers and the Northern democracy coalesced in support of the President's policy, with the President's bread and butter to back them, against the policy of Congress embodied in the pending constitutional amendment and the Civil Rights bill.

The people from Maine to California, to whom Mr. Johnson had appealed, pronounced a heavy judgment against him Had he respected that judgment he might still have accomplished an advantageous compromise for himself and the South with Congress But with all the odds against him he still persisted in his rejected and exploded policy, going on from bad to worse, until by a vote exceeding two thirds of each House his whole system of Southern restoration and Executive patronage is cut out by the roots and a law of Southern reorganization is established, transcending the most sanguine hopes even of "Old Thad Stevens" twelve months ago.

Universal suffrage ("excepting Indians not taxed") is established in all the Territories, and in the District of Columbia, where at the first broadside a radical Mayor for Georgetown was elected the other day by the balance of power held by the negro vote. Next comes the sweeping bill of Southern reconstruction, re establishing martial law over the ten excluded rebel States, providing for universal negro suffrage in the work of State reorganization, for the exclusion of leading rebels, and for the ratification by the pending constitutional amendment by each State concerned and by the great majority of three fourths of the states required to make it part of the supreme law This is the grand result of Mr. Johnson's Southern policy, and these are the conditions of restoration for which his friends and followers have to thank him. Had he yielded in season a little to Congress and Northern opinion he might have gained much for himself and the South; in conceding nothing, he has lost all. He must now surrender or resign or he will be removed. The conflict with Congress has been narrowed down to this final test

The Thirty ninth Congress has done its appointed work and it retires from the field, but the Fortieth Congress, of the same materials, immediately takes its place. It is the Long Parliament against Charles the First; it is the irresistible revolution against James the Second. The thing is fixed that the war for the Union shall not turn out a failure. Now, what will President Johnson do? According to the custom from the beginning he must submit his budget on the state of the country and his suggestions for the public welfare to this new Congress, after its organization, as the first essential to business He is, therefore, required to meet this bill of reconstruction face to face as a law of the land His policy is swept away—every vestige of it A revolution has been accomplished in the course of a day, and the new order of things is a law of the land Will Mr Johnson so recognize it and bravely face the music? That is the question. The election of the terrible Ben Wade as President of the Senate embodies a purpose and a warning which Mr Johnson would do well to bear in mind Moreover, the ominous figure of Gen Ben Butler begins already to loom up in the other House

What party arrangements will now avail Mr Johnson in still standing out against Congress? The Northern Democracy, with the loss of their Southern balance of power in 1860, lost sight of everything else in their efforts to recover it. But where is now that Southern balance of power and where will it be for the future? In the Southern negro vote Who would have believed it possible even six months ago? Yet so it is. And, then all the old Democratic fire eating leaders of the South are cast out What existing party arrangements on either side will answer to meet this state of things? What can Andrew Johnson do if cast adrift upon these waves of political reconstruction? He will soon be swept into oblivion His only course of wisdom is to lay down his arms, give up the fight and fall in with the ultimatum of the Thirty Ninth Congress in his opening message to the Fortieth Congress Otherwise he will soon be a traveler on the road to Tennessee—N. Y. Herald

AN ENGLISH EDITOR'S IDEA OF THE SIZE OF THIS COUNTRY.—Hepworth Dixon, editor of the London Athenæum, lately made a tour of the United States and has just published a book giving the results of his observations, from which we extract the following He seems to have acquired larger ideas both of the people and country than he had previously entertained

Yes, the Republic is a big country In England we have no lines of sufficient length, no areas of sufficient width, to convey a just idea of its size Our longest line is that running from Land's End to Berwick—a line which is some miles shorter than the distance from Washington to Lexington Our broadest valley is that of the Thames—the whole of which would lie hidden from sight in the corner of the Sierra Madre The State of Oregon is bigger than England, California is about the size of Spain, Texas would be larger than France, if France had won the frontier of the German Rhine If the United States were parted into equal lots, they would make fifty two kingdoms as large as England and fourteen empires as large as France; Even the grander figure of Europe—the sent of our great powers, and as many lesser powers—a continent which we used to call the world, and light to maintain in delicate balance of parts—fails us when we come to measure in its lines such amplitudes as those of the United States To wit from Eastport to Brownsville is farther than from London to Tuat, in the Great Sahara, from Washington to Astoria is farther than from Brussels to Kars, from New York to San Francisco is farther than from Paris to Bagdad Such measures seem to carry us away from the sphere of fact into the realms of magic and romance

Glancing at a map of America, we see to the north a group of lakes Now, our English notion of a lake is likely to have been derived from Coniston, Killarney, Lomond Leman and Garda But those sheets of water give us no true hints of what Huron and Superior are like, scarcely indeed what Erie and Ontario are like Coniston Killarney, Lomond, Leman, and Garda, put together would not cover a tenth part of the surface occupied by the smallest of the five American lakes All the waters lying in the Swiss, Italian, English, Irish, Scotch and German lakes, might be poured into Michigan without making a perceptible addition to its flood Yorkshire might be sunk out of sight in Erie Ontario drowns as much land as would make two duchies equal in area to Schleswig and Holstein Denmark proper could be washed by the waves of Huron Many of the minor lakes of America would be counted as inland seas elsewhere, to wit Salt Lake in Utah, has a surface of 2,000 square miles while that of Geneva has only 310; that of Como, only 90, that of Killarney, only 9 A kingdom like Saxony, a principality like Parma, a duchy like Coburg if thrown in one heap into Lake Superior, might add an island to its beauty, but would be no more conspicuous in its vast expanse than one of those pretty green islets which adorn Loch Lomond.

OUR SAN FRANCISCO DISPATCH

SAN FRANCISCO, April 13—B M Clark a rash and blind maker employed in the Empire Mill on Fremont street, was instantly killed about half past ten o'clock this morning by the machinery It appears that the unfortunate left the shop and was out of position and he attempted to adjust it while the engine was in motion No one was near him at the time or saw the accident, but it is supposed the fly wheel or crank struck him, knocking him into the pit The machinery was immediately stopped and the body of Clark extricated He breathed but once after striking His face and head were terribly bruised, and one of his feet which was caught between the fly wheel and it was supposed to be loose

Henry Abbott has filed his petition in insolvency He has been engaged in merchandising in San Francisco, Sacramento and Virginia City Loss by fire, $13,000, by depreciation of real estate in that city and by floods in Sacramento, $5,000 His liabilities amount to about $30,000 Amount against them nothing of value

John Wilson, an old resident of this State, dropped dead on Jackson street wharf this morning He formerly kept the Webber House at Stockton, but for the past year or two has been residing in this city, where he has been engaged in banking and loaning money

Judge Sawyer to-day, granted Kate Bloome a divorce from her husband, John Bloome on the ground of desertion

Wm Rice, merchant and mining engineer well known to mining men, died at Centreville, Alameda county, yesterday He erected some of the largest mills in Nevada, and has been identified with the mining interests of this coast for many years

Making Faces at the Military Bill

Not all the exponents of rebeldom receive the Military Reconstruction Bill with as good grace as Joe Brown and Governors Orr and Pierpont. Many of the newspapers of the South express their indignation at the terms that are offered them in a decided manner. This indignation savors of a curious perplexity on account of the perception that they are placed in a situation in which they cannot help themselves, for among the excellencies of the plan is the fact that it cannot be evaded by sullenness or trickery

The Richmond Times says that the bill "erects a military despotism much as of our liberties, and gives to each district a military ruler whose authority is as autocratic as that of the Czar," and mourns over the fact that "Virginia" is hereafter to figure upon the statute books of the nation as "District No. 1." She is to be treated like a convicted felon, whose head is shaved, and who, when locked up, is henceforth known as "No 49," or "No 86"

The Enquirer wails it nullified by the Supreme Court, to which the Times responds by showing that in any fight between Congress and the Supreme Court Congress is sure to come off best.

The Dispatch gives the names of leading gentlemen of the city who are disfranchised by the bill, among whom, to its great horror, it finds its own proprietors

The Examiner pronounces it the most wicked, wanton and tyrannical bill that ever passed a civilized assembly.

This journal, however, quite rationally concludes that as reconstruction, according to the terms of the bill, has got to come upon the State, the rebel representatives will show their shrewdness by taking up the work themselves so far as the law will allow them

The Whig apparently has the same opinion, but makes a very wry face over it. It is disgusted at the attitude of the Northern Democracy in abandoning the rebels at this moment, and, reminding them that they would not like to be themselves served in that way, adds

"In this view of the matter, the Southern States may not consider themselves called upon any longer to champion a lost cause, which it is as much the duty of others as theirs to uphold and defend. They have sacrificed their all in support of self government. They may consider it enough for them now, seeing empire in the near future, to adopt such measures as will render its advent as little injurious to them as possible. They would if they could, avoid forty years devastating wars among contending chieftains, such as have laid waste Mexico, and embrace at once peaceful empire and a magnanimous and auspicious Cæsar. Perhaps universal suffrage, under the tutelage of martial law, will supply the surest, the speediest, and the safest means to that consummation."

The worst of it, with this Whig as with others, is that "under the vague and indefinite phraseology of the bill, if the conservative elements do not act, any others may, and we shall have a Brownlow despotism upon us a hundred fold worse than that of any Brigadier"

This it is proper to observe, is one of the chief merits of the bill, in that it provides for its own execution in spite of all the machinations that rebels can bring to bear against it

All the signs agree in showing that the mass of intelligent sentiment at the South is concentrating in favor of practicable action, and the only practicable action for which there is a place under the terms of the Military bill"

MAKING TREASON ODIOUS.—The Richmond Times has an article in which it proposes to reward those who fight in the "lost cause" by electing them to office The following is the concluding paragraph

"The winds of expiring winter are still mourning through Hollywood, Oakwood, and a hundred battle fields in Virginia, over the decaying forms of heroes whose comrades still survive, their brows wreathed with imperishable laurels These living representatives of the mighty dead are the men whom Virginia should delight to honor in the coming elections The men who dared death on the field, on the marsh, in camp, in the hospital and in prison, are those who love Virginia enough to serve her in peace Those eyes which were sleepless before the enemy as the lonely sentinels paced their post of stout on picket, will watch now over the welfare and honor of Virginia at a period when the perils of peace are scarcely less than lately were those of war We invoke this heroic class to come to the rescue of their native State with their hearts and heads, and not with swords and muskets"

THE BAPTIST CHURCH.—There are in the United States 2,675 Baptist churches, with 3,033 ordained clergymen, and 1 043 041 members Of these, New York contains 826 churches, 745 clergymen, and 89,107 members, and New England has 897 churches, 739 clergymen and 97,071 members The Baptists have 29 colleges, the oldest of which is Brown University, at Providence, Rhode Island, founded in 1764, and the youngest is a College established in Chicago in 1850 There are 13 Baptist theological institutions, and the Baptist publications are an annual almanac, a quarterly review, eleven monthly magazines and Sunday school papers, and twenty six weekly religious newspapers The Baptist Missionary Union, the headquarters of which is at Boston, employs 83 missionaries and 500 native preachers in Asia, and 200 preachers in Europe The Baptist Home Mission Society, with its chief office in New York has 127 missionaries, mainly in the West and South The Baptist Publication Society, located in Philadelphia, issued last year, papers, books and tracts equal to 120,010, 117 pages 18mo, and employed 58 colportours

WHY THE WHOLE HOG.—A German boarding house keeper in Cincinnati had roast pig for dinner on Sunday. The animal (a small one) was served up whole and as it was placed on the table sent forth an appetizing and savory smell that pervaded the dining room and made every occupant wish for a slice but to the astonishment of every guest a great burly brute Teutonic boarder from the country sat down opposite the dish and incontinently appropriated the entire roast The landlord happened to be absent, and good breeding prevented any of the guests entering a protest so Hans made such havoc of the dish and wiped his lips with such evident relish, that one of the waiters, with a keener sense of the fun, approached him and inquired if he would have anything else Hans' beaming face brightened in a moment, and he asked in reply, "Got any more de dem leetle hogs?"

Surveyed Lands in Oregon

By returns in the office of the Secretary of the Interior it appears that the area of surveyed lands in Oregon at the close of the fiscal year ending June 30 1866 was 3 730 226 acres During the last fiscal year ending with the date above given but little surveying was done,—the whole coverings less than two thousand acres We have no accurate data of the area surveyed during the latter part of the year 1866 In the southeastern part of the State considerable work was done in the vicinity of the Oregon Central Military Road, and a large body of land in that locality was divided into townships. During the coming summer the work will be continued in the same vicinity.

In the papers accompanying the report of the Secretary of the Interior, communicated to Congress last December, mention is made of the fact that in many localities in this State settlements have advanced far beyond the surveys, and that there is an earnest demand for surveying extensions both in our older valleys and also in those of John Day, Grande Ronde, Powder, Smith's, Coos, and Coquille rivers. We make the following extract from this report, which will be found to contain matters of interest to the people of Oregon:

In the estimates of the Surveyor General for 1868, an item is inserted to pay the cost of ninety miles of guide meridian to extend the eastern guide toward the State boundary The object is to prepare the way to meet the demand for the extension of surveys in the southeastern portion of the State, to include the settlements of Jordan Creek and Alvord valley, and to keep pace with the wants of the Oregon Central Military Road Company, in ascertaining and locating the lands donated to that improvement and also to accommodate settlements as they extend along its route westward from Idaho The route has been located, but surveys along the line have been delayed on account of Indian difficulties. Under the appropriation of $20,000 by the act of 7th April, 1866, the Surveyor General has made engagements for the establishment of the townships on the east waters of the Umatilla river, for subdivisional surveys east of Klamath lake, along the Oregon Central Military Road, adjoining the north boundary of the Klamath Indian Reservation, also contracted for the survey in the Fall through the strip of Coast Range Indian Reservation, as diminished by the President's order. The object is to throw open to occupancy and use the described portion of the reserve, so as to be open to citizens as other public lands

The quantity of public land sold for cash in Oregon for the fiscal year ending on the 30th of June last, for the minimum price of $1 25 per acre was 28,453 acres. The quantity entered under the homestead act during the same period was 70,972 acres The proceeds of the sale of public lands in Oregon for the same year were $35,610 70. The aggregate of $10 payments as required under the homestead act was $6,680. It will be seen that about 100,000 acres of the public lands in this State were disposed of for cash and under the homestead law during the fiscal year, ending June 30th, 1866. This furnishes an extension of settlements within the State which is quite gratifying We shall be mistaken if the reports of the Land Office do show a still more rapid settlement for the present year, and for some years to come.

The "organ" characterizes the statements made in the Columbia Press Extra, in regard to the "Democratic victory" in the school meeting at Umatilla, upon which we made some comments a few days ago, as an "April fool hoax." It says that the proceedings referred to never occurred and that the "extra" was gotten up in the Press office as a "sell." We [illegible] Clane something about this matter that has recently known unaware of At the school meeting at Umatilla the Democrats made extra exertions to elect the officers upon a party basis, and fearing they would be defeated they rushed into the [illegible] got a number of good Democrats who were temporarily stopping in the town and who belong to that class who are always ready to vote a Democratic ticket, and with them they had a majority. Immediately afterwards the Press got out an "Extra" boasting of the great "Democratic victory." This "Extra" was sent [illegible] delivered at every door by the regular carrier of the Press. It awakened great indignation among the Union men, and the Press, finding it was doing itself an injury, did not circulate it outside of the town. The copy we received was sent us by a Union man of Umatilla, accompanied with a letter giving a detailed account of the whole proceeding. These being the facts, we ask the "organ" who it is that has been "sold?"—Who is it that is "simple," you mass of [illegible] you block of stupidity, you stunned [illegible] from your lucubrate mummy, you thrice [illegible] from our copy of an original lie?

A Washington letter states that Gen. Grant speaks openly in favor of the Reconstruction bill. He remarked a short time ago that all his Generals were radical in their opinions, though, when first sent down there, they were eminently conservative. Gen Schofield is a specimen. He was picked out as a man after the President's own heart; but a month in Virginia made him over into a thorough Congress Radical. It is the best school on the continent for forgiving and it is suggested that [illegible] Robert C. Buchner and George Lunt, if assigned to commands in Texas and Virginia, would within six months go over to Stevens and Sumner. I have heard of the wife of a Union general, who went South, not many months ago, with the reputation of "rebel sympathizer" and "secessionist" who is now almost violent in her radicalism! To her astonishment, she found that her mild-mannered husband was insulted at every street-corner, and she too was treated at and considered, simply because she was the wife of a Union general! That was all. The shrieking of Southern society did not stop to enquire respecting her sentiments; for it was enough that she was the wife of a man who had been engaged in the war against the rebellion Thus the stupidity of the Southern people increases the triumph of radical principles."

The frightful results of the workings of "my policy" in the South were vividly set forth in a recent speech by Senator Wilson. He gave the facts in regard to a large number of murders of freedmen in the various rebel States, all officially reported—omitting of course the many of which no official notice has been taken. In Virginia 13 murders and 108 outrages are reported, in South Carolina, 29 murders and 64 outrages; in North Carolina, 25 murders and 86 outrages; in Georgia, 79 murders, in Mississippi, 34 murders, in Kentucky, 19 murders, and in Texas, 24 direct murders and 10 cases of mortally wounding; making in all since the passage of the Civil Rights bill, 375 murders and 558 outrages of various kinds In the case of Texas, Mr. Wilson gave in detail the names of the victims, and their of the perpetrators, where the latter were known, also places and months in which the crimes were committed In most cases no action was taken by the civil authorities

The chair in which Hancock sat, when he presided over the first Congress of the United States, and the table on which the Declaration of Independence was signed, originally belonged to the Colonial Legislature of Pennsylvania and were loaned to Congress on its meeting at Philadelphia They were subsequently deposited in the Capitol at Harrisburg The Pennsylvania Legislature recently decided that these relics should be transferred to the famous Independence Hall and there enshrined where they were made immortal in history The transfer was made on the 22d of February with imposing ceremonies

If there is any person who, having read the Herald's Sunday morning article, desires to find a full and exact revelation of it, let him turn to a certain very old book and read therein the Pharisee's prayer.

The Course of Virginia

The Military Reconstruction Act has roused the South to the necessity of immediate action The do nothing policy is full of terrors and will be adhered to no longer. The Richmond Examiner, which is the oldest and most influential journal in Virginia, says in an address to the people of that State

On the fourth Thursday in May next, if the terms of the act of Congress have not meanwhile been fully complied with and your State restored—a result physically impossible—an election will be held in Virginia for Governor Lieutenant-Governor Attorney-General and for members of the Legislature At that election all may vote (and none others) who are qualified by this act to vote All will be eligible (and none others) who are by the act made eligible Meanwhile however the necessary steps will be taken by Radical whites and such of the blacks as they can influence to comply with the provisions of the act [illegible] If you can continue to defy and resist the outrages inflicted on you by persisting in your resolution to take no part in the scheme it will pass almost without dissent, and will be recognized and accepted by Congress as soon as offered

This is a practical common sense view of the situation, and the people must be bent on their own ruin if it be not convincing. The Charlottesville (Va.) Chronicle puts the matter in a still stronger light

There are three courses for the Legislature to take The first is to fight. This road is to fold our arms and do nothing The third is to call a State Convention. There would be a unanimous voice in favor of the first if we had any power to make a decent resistance The question is between the second and third The third leads to an acceptance of the cruel and merciless terms imposed upon us The second leads to the same thing, and to much more The question now is who shall get the possession of the State under the new dispensation of universal suffrage, the whites or the blacks? It has been said that we had better have military law than submit to such degradation as is implied in the acceptance of the terms This is true ten times over But military law is not the alternative It is military law and negro suffrage and the proscription of the leading men These three things come upon us without our lifting a finger This is not all; there will be a Convention to ratify the terms proposed If we stand off, which are Botts and Hamilton, and Underwood, and the 500,000 negroes? They will have a Convention, and they will put the State back in the Union, and they will give us a State Constitution! That Constitution will be the law of Tennessee It will perpetuate the power in their hands The one 600 000 whites in Virginia We can control the State; we can guide, if we cannot arrest the storm, and the most complete will be our mastership of the situation Wait, and wait, and wait, and the factual will organize the ingress against us A State Constitution can be framed in literal compliance with the act of Congress, which will take all minor elections from the people leaving only the Governor, the members of the General Assembly and members of Congress to be elected by the popular vote, and it may be that a property and educational qualification can be secured as a condition of holding office of any kind We are, therefore, for a Convention at once. It is not worth while to resist the deluge; the man who trusts in God will build an ark that shall float upon the tempestuous waters Suicide in a sea of troubles may have been a Roman, but it is not a Christian or an English virtue To do nothing now is social suicide; it is despair. We are very far from despair, black as the prospect is] The immediate aim of our State should be to get back in the Union as quickly as possible. There we shall be measurably at least, shielded from the Radical storm If we stay out much longer, we shall have confiscation added to negro suffrage There we have at least reached a resting place There we can control our State affairs—there we can make another State Constitution.

Commenting on this, a correspondent of the San Francisco Bulletin remarks:

This is powerfully put. Can any sane man gainsay the argument? Observe here one significant suggestion by which the South may at some distant day avoid the most vigorous conditions imposed upon her—"When once admitted as a State in the Union, we can make another Brave Constitution." What is to prevent it? This contingency, to some as appreciated, will probably reconcile many to the inevitable. The example of Tennessee and Missouri is a terror to the people of the South In those States the ex-rebels are disenfranchised and utterly at the mercy of their enemies, who never tire of heaping disqualifications and indignities upon them. Every election is looked upon as a stinging insult to them, for their late slaves are free to vote, and they exhort all other Southern communities will soon come to understand that this must be their condition unless they promptly seize the helm and endeavor to steer their shattered bark into a harbor of refuge There is time to-day to-morrow may be too late short as the time has been since the passage of the military bill upon the leading men of the South have already spoken in favor of submission Ex-Governor Brown, of Georgia, who exhausted the resources of his State to sustain the Confederacy, and who is a man of mark among his people, has publicly counseled immediate acceptance of the Congressional terms. Other leaders are rallied in all the principal towns to take the subject into consideration. North Carolina will be among the first to act The Wilmington Dispatch says "in less than sixty days we shall have a Convention, which will have fixed things for North Carolina."

CHOICE EXTRACTS FOR NORTHERN DEMOCRATS.—It is amusing to witness the efforts which the leading politicians of the south are practising with the negroes in order to obtain their votes. Here is the way the high born Governor of the chivalrous, State of South Carolina talks in a negro mass-meeting. Will the Confederates of Oregon who are trembling at the thought of political equality with negroes, "make a note of" these words from the Governor of the aristocratic State which has always been the object of their admiration:

As the chief Executive of the State, it perhaps becomes me to say to you, and to reiterate what I have said to other assemblages of colored men, that I intend, so long as I continue to discharge the functions devolved upon me by the people of South Carolina, that those who attempt to outrage or oppress you shall have the law enforced against them. I shall use all the forces whenever it becomes necessary, to save you against what may be the passion or prejudice of any locality, or against an unjust conviction and unjust punishment.

Now, education is a matter of very great consequence. I am glad to know you have organized schools here for your people will be attended with reference to schools of the whites in many other places and I shall urge likewise that a common school system will be inaugurated which will embrace the colored as well as the white race

I am prepared to stand by the colored man who is able to read the Declaration of Independence and the Constitution of the United States. I am prepared to give the colored man who can do this the privilege of going to the ballot box and voting.

Think of the Governor of South Carolina talking in such a strain as this! Think of his "degrading himself" by attending a "nigger" meeting and thus putting himself on an "equality with niggers!" Think of his promising them that a common school system shall be organized "which will embrace the colored as well as the white race," and of his telling them that they ought to be allowed to vote! Isn't this "negro equality?" Can the Democrats of Oregon fail to discern the signs of the times? Can they believe that their sense less outcry about this matter will be of any avail after South Carolina has surrendered?

In a pamphlet just issued from the Treasury Department at Washington containing statistics for transmission to the Paris Exposition, we find the following interesting facts in regard to the nativity of our foreign population. The Irish are, of course, the greatest in number, being 1,611,304 The Germans, however, are not very far behind, being 1,301,136. Next follow the English, who amount to 431,692, then those from British North America, 249,070, the French, 109,370, the Scotch, 108,518; the Swiss, 53,227; the Welsh, 45,764, the Norwegians, 43,905, the Chinese, 35,565—and so on. The total foreign population is 4,136,175, or about one-eighth the entire population of the country

Wood sold lately at Virginia City, Nevada, at $30 per cord. The Enterprise advised persons having wooden legs to keep them strapped on securely, and those who carried canes or went on crutches to be ready at all times to defend their valuable property. The same paper said that women were burning their corsets for kindling wood

It is estimated that during many years past the movement of silver to Asia has amounted to $45,000,000 annually Little or none of this has ever returned. Asia produces comparatively little silver and gold, and rapidly absorbs the precious metals produced elsewhere.

The population of France has increased 680 633 in five years, being now 38,067,094 This is slow work, but the increase is probably as rapid as that country will bear

FRENCH AND ENGLISH.—A critic in a metropolitan cotemporary writes: "Cottes vaise is sufficiently agreeable sent sorts, and will serve tres bien for pretty jeune ladies to play, and pour autres pretty jeune ladies to dance to To judge par le titlepage elle est written pour some people or autre where a patois, motlie English is spoken, and come notre criticism is intended pour etre read par les same persons—nous have adopted le same style."

Some time ago a merchant of an eastern city made a bargain with a lady for two chickens The lady brought them to his store, and he being busy, she placed them on the end of the counter He didn't think that the proper place for them, but didn't like to say so plainly, so he remarked as the chickens were jumping about "They won't lay there, will they?" meaning that they would be likely to jump off the counter His astonishment may be imagined when the lady replied "Of course they won't, they're roosters!"

THE CENTRAL PACIFIC RAILROAD.—The Treepass, speaking of this road, says:

"The Central Pacific Railroad is coming towards us. Many of the troubles, too, which beset the working of the road are now in process of being remedied. Gigantic work is doing—on the surface against distance and altitude, and at the same time underground, and in the face of nature's strong barriers, the ribs of the towering mountain range. In this line of the road, work is now, during bad weather, directed in a large measure to a reduction of the heavy grade which at some points is serious. Work is progressing in eight tunnels. Seven of these will be completed as early as the first of June. The main tunnel, running under the summit of the mountain range, will take a track of 1,600 feet. Of this 600 feet have now been completed. The calculation is that the whole 1,600 feet will be completed, and the track laid by the 15th of November next By that time the track will be permanently laid to the Nevada State line. The present working force is 5,000 men, and contracts have been made for 10,000 more until the latter, we believe coolies, contracted for with Chinese Companies in San Francisco. The Company expects to reach the Truckee river at a point near Hunter's Station, by February of next year At that rate they will reach a point on the Humboldt river, opposite Dun Glen, in July, 1868 Then will come in a source of material aid. The Humboldt trade will by that time be a great item, and the Idaho and Montana trade will prove a matter of material profit. CAPITAL STOCK, $1,000,000!

Directors:

LOUIS A. CARNETT.

LOUIS A CARNETT President and Manager
JOHN HEWSTON Jr Chemist and Superintendent.

THIS COMPANY HAVING GREATLY enlarged their Refining Works, and introduced many other important improvements, are pleased to announce that they feel warranted in again reducing materially their rates of doing business

THE TARIFF OF CHARGES

Which they now submit to the public—considered with reference to the cost of material and labor—is lower than in any other part of the world, and secures to the mining interest of this coast an important increase in both the mining and commercial value of Bullion.

Their charges hereafter will be as follows:

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED GOLD BARS

One eighth of one per cent (heretofore a quarter) for all amounts over $1,000, and two dollars for any smaller sum Returns made in twenty four hours.

FOR ASSAYING DEPOSITS FOR UNPARTED SILVER BARS

Two dollars for the gold contained, up to $1,000, and one-eighth of one per cent, for all amounts over that sum, and one per cent. on the silver contained. Returns made in twenty four hours.

FOR REFINING DEPOSITS MADE FOR COIN OR FINE BARS

On bullion under 300 parts gold, 2 cents per ounce
On bullion from 300 to 6000 parts gold, 4 cents per ounce
On bullion from 6000 to 6720 parts gold, 6 cents per ounce
Above 6720 the only charge will be for coinage. But there will be no charge for refining less than two dollars

FOR COINING GOLD.

This charge will be the same as at the Mint—half of one per cent—and which is paid by us to that institution But there will be no charge in future for making fine gold or silver bars from bullion refined by us.

RETURNS IN COIN IN FORTY EIGHT HOURS.

Silver contained in deposits for coin will be accounted for at the same rate ordered by the Mint.

Gold bars of either Assayers, in good standing, will be cashed by us at the highest market rates

Dust and bullion can be forwarded to us from any part of the country, and returns made through Wells, Fargo & Co's Express

CHARGES AT U S BRANCH MINT

For the consignees of those not familiar with the terms of the Mint, we subjoin the tariff of charges now in force at that institution

For refining bullion under 300 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce

For refining bullion from 300 to 600 parts gold, 5 cents per ounce.

For refining bullion from 600 to 720 parts gold, 7 cents per ounce.

For refining bullion from 720 to 840 parts gold, 11 cents per ounce

The charge for coinage is half of one per cent., and the charges for pulling Bar silver into the mixture.

Computing the net value of deposits for coinage, with the proceeds of unparted gold bars sold in the market—assuming that the bars have cost ½ of one per cent—they must be sold at the following rates to equal the return which would have been made had they been deposited for coinage:

850 per to equal Mint return, at, refining charge of 14 cents
845 per to equal Mint return, at, refining charge of 15 cents
805 per to equal San Francisco A. & B Works return, at refining charge of 5 cents. mh16 2p6m

PATRIOTIC CALL.—In the Oregon Pioneer (German paper of Portland,) we find a call upon the German citizens to subscribe to a fund for the relief of Theodore Meagling and family. The call is over the signatures of F. S. Ostheim, President, of the Portland Turn-Verein Association. Theodore Meagling is one of the German patriots who espoused the cause of liberty in the Fatherland in the revolution of 1848, and again in the re-action of 1854. For this part he took in the struggle of 1848, he underwent a long term of imprisonment and was again incarcerated in 1854. His long sufferings while in confinement resulted in partially unsettling his mind and he has never recovered. Lately, the news has come that he is hopelessly insane and that his family is reduced to extremely indigent circumstances. The Germans of the United States, not unmindful of the blessings they enjoy under our free government, and to show their appreciation of Theodore Meagling's efforts to secure for Germany a similar form of liberty, are contributing to a fund for the maintenance of their unfortunate countryman and the education of his children. They naturally hope and expect that the movement may contribute to the fuller development of the sentiments of liberty still burning in German hearts, and which have lately manifested themselves in the election of several liberal members to the present German parliament. The call is addressed exclusively to Germans.

PERSONAL.—Judge Wyche of the Washington Territory bench called on us last evening. The Judge will be at Vancouver during the session of the Union Territorial Convention, before which his name will be prominently placed in connection with the nomination for Delegate to Congress.

The Open Polar Sea

In July, 1860, Dr I I Hayes left Boston in the schooner United States, of one hundred and thirty three tons burthen, to undertake an exploration in the Arctic region, with the hope of discovering the open Polar Sea. Undergoing the usual vicissitudes of Arctic travel he arrived at Upernavik in the middle of August, added Danish sailors and Esquimaux hunters and interpreters to his company, and after a brief tarry at that outpost of civilization, resumed his journey toward the North A week after leaving Upernavik he succeeded in the novel undertaking of obtaining photographic scenery A week later the schooner entered Melville Bay, where no ice was in sight—all was clear; but after passing the bay furious storms were encountered, the little vessel was driven upon the icebergs, and seriously crippled, and by the beginning of September the explorers had a variety of dangerous adventures Finally, winter quarters were found in a snug harbor in Hartstene Bay, which was named Port Foulke, in honor of a Philadelphia gentleman, who had been "one of the most constant advocates of the expedition," and at this point the crew and vessel prepared to endure the long season of cold and darkness An astronomical observatory was improvised, the larder of the vessel was replenished with reindeer flesh, the lamps were lighted, amusements were invented, and the whole party then saw themselves gradually frozen in The monotony of the first winter in the ice was broken by explorations of neighboring glaciers, sledge journeys, hunts and surveys

On the 18th of February the sun re-appeared, a reinforcement of Esquimaux came in, the dog-teams were strengthened, and a preliminary journey over the ice was undertaken by Dr Hayes in person, in order to determine whether it was best to adhere to the Greenland coast, following the coats of Dr Kane, or to strike directly across the Sound from above Cape Hatherton, in the endeavor to touch on Grinnell Land, the point of departure which the party had vainly attempted to reach in the previous Autumn Specimens of Arctic temperature may be collected from an entry in Dr. Hayes' journal of this trip "I brought out the thermometer," he says, and put it up in the shadow of an iceberg near by. I really expected to see it rise, but no, down sank the little red column, down, down, almost to the very bulb, and it never stopped until it had touched 68° degrees below zero—100° degrees below freezing point of water." He adds "I recall but two instances of equally low temperature having been previously recorded, one of which by Nicorof, at Yahousk, in Siberia, was—72 degrees of the Fahrenheit scale I am not, however, aware that any traveler has ever stood so, low a temperature while in the field."

Arriving at the great Humboldt glacier Dr. Hayes found his route blocked by bad ice and numerous bergs, while his dogs were worn out, and it soon became apparent that there was no way to the Polar Sea in that direction. His only route was by the passage across Smith's Sound to Grinnell Land Returning to the schooner, he immediately began preparations for the summer journey, and the field party, consisting of twelve persons—every available officer and man engaged in the expedition—set out on the evening of the 3d of April, 1861. Three weeks of hard toiling, furnished "but one succession of baffling obstacles," the boat with which the party started was left behind, the sledges broke down, the dogs gave out, the wind was intense, the log had sprung the mast fell and On the 18th of April the main party was sent back to the schooner, Dr. Hayes himself remaining with three picked men, fourteen dogs and a sledge, to prosecute the search for the Open Sea From this point onward the narrative of the journey becomes painfully interesting

On the 19th of April, Dr Hayes and his three companions started forth On the thirteenth day of their journey from the ship (May 11th) they reached the farthest shore of the Sound, and two days later reached Kennedy Channel. On the 15th the strongest man of the little party—Jensen—broke down A messenger was left to watch him, and Dr Hayes pushed forward, with only one companion, to make his "last throw." He writes: "My purpose now was to make the boat push I could, and traveling as far as my provisions warranted, reach the highest attainable latitude, and secure a point of observation, that would enable me to form a definite opinion respecting the sea before me, and the probability of sailing and navigating it with a boat or with the vessel, I had already named at eleven miles to the northward of that attained by Morton, of Dr. Kane's expedition, in June 1854, and was looking out upon the same sea from a point probably about sixty miles to the northward and westward of Cape Constitution where, only a month later in the season, his further progress was arrested by open water It only remained for me, now to extend the survey as far to the north as possible By the judicious husbanding of my resources I had still within my hands the means to guarantee a successful termination to a journey which the increasing darkness a distant of the waters to the northward seemed to say to me proceeding further"

On the 18th of May he climbed a ragged cliff, whence he saw the Open Sea, and the next day, after having fully built a cairn and planted the American flag, had the most northern point ever reached by man

The flags planted on the crag were a small United States flag, which had been carried the South Sea expedition of Captain Wilkes, and afterwards in the Arctic Expedition of Lieutenant Commanding De Haven and Dr. Kane, and the United States flag which had been committed to Mr Sontag by the ladies of the Albany Academy two diminutive Masonic flags, entrusted to Dr Hayes—one by the Mark Lodge of New York, the other by the Columbia Lodge of Boston, and the expedition signal-flag, bearing the emblem of a crimson star on a white field. Dr Hayes says "Being now at the second cairn, to unfurl all those flags at the most northern point attained, it was my pleasing duty to carry them with me—a duty rendered none the less pleasing by the circumstance that together they did not weigh three pounds"

Dr Haynes' theory concerning the open Polar sea is as follows "With the warm flood of the Gulf Stream pouring northward, and keeping the waters of the Polar sea at a temperature above freezing point while the winds, blowing as constantly under the Arctic as under the Tropic sky, and the ceaseless currents of the sea and the tide-flow of the surface, keep the waters ever in motion at it is not possible that even any considerable portion of this extensive sea can be frozen over A point within the Arctic Circle where been an ice-belt extending either in winter or summer more than fifty or a hundred miles from land And even in the extreme of a deep-arresting the islands of the Parry Archipelago, in Baffin's Bay in the North Water and the mouth of Smith Sound—every [illegible] within the broad area of the Frigid Zone, the ice will not freeze at all when sheltered by the land, or when an ice-pack accumulated by a long continuance of winds from one quarter, affords the same protection

He contends, further, that the boundaries of the Polar Basin are sufficiently well defined to enable us to form a rational estimate of the unknown coast lines of Greenland and Grinnell Land—the only parts of the extensive circuit remaining unexplored. The trend of the northern coastline of Greenland is approximately defined by the reasonable analogies of physical geography; and the same process of reasoning forbids the conclusion that Grinnell Land extends beyond the limits of his exploration. He holds, as Inglefield did before him that South Bend extends into the Polar Basin

The results of this extended survey, he holds are unquestionably valuable to all time, and should some of Dr Hayes' theories fail to endure the test of critical examination He evidently believes fully in the speculations he puts forward, and the spirit with which he prosecuted his investigations in the face of obstacles apparently insurmountable is worthy of all praise His narratives of adventure, excepting those which relate to the latter part of his journey, unfortunately repeat what has been said by Kane and other explorers, and add but little to our knowledge; but the account of his discoveries in the high latitudes is singularly fresh and lively.

THE FENIAN RISING.—The Dublin Freeman's Journal contains a pretended revelation of the mysteries of Fenian movements. The attack on Chester, risings in the large towns in England, and a general insurrection in Ireland, were stopped just in the nick of time by a messenger from the new Head Centre, John Mitchell, from his head quarters at Richmond The news did not get to Kerry in time to stop the rising there: but Mr. Mitchell, who has superseded Stephens, now in Paris, or the south of France, has decided that nothing must be done, except organization and preparation, until war between England and America or France shall give them a better opportunity. So that matter is settled

It having been rumored that the impoverished German princeling, who is married to Queen Victoria's daughter Helena, was to receive the Colonelcy of one of the Scotch regiments of the Household Brigade of Guards, the Liberal press of England justly warmth indignant The London Telegraph, protests bitterly against "the system of bolting away, upon worthless members of the royal family, honors and emoluments that belong to men who have earned their country"

A Newburyport school teacher, about to marry a widower with a number of children, sent in her resignation to the committee, because she "had engaged, for an indefinite period of time, as an assistant in a private family."

Humorous Items

"It is well to leave something for those who come after us," as the gentleman said who threw a barrel in the way of a constable who was chasing him

"I'm afraid you'll come to want,' said an old lady to a young gentleman "I have come to want already," was the reply, "I want your daughter"

"If you had attended runs," said a rumseller to a customer, "you could now ride in your carriage" "And if you had never sold rum," said the bacchanal you would have been my driver"

Mrs K., after expressing her love for her young children added tenderly, "And how do you like babies, Mr Lamb?" His answer, immediate, almost precipitate, was, "Boil 'em, madam."

A Frenchman cannot pronounce "ship." The word is "sheep" in his mouth Seeing an ironclad, he said to a boy, "Ish dish a war sheep?" "No," answered the boy, "it's a ram."

At Morrisville is an epitaph on one Sam McLaughlin, mortuus, with the addenda "If all the leading politicians and priests go to heaven, I want to get off at some other station"

A counsel being questioned by a judge to know for whom he was concerned, replied, "I am concerned, my lord, for the plaintiff, but I am employed by the defendant"

An old bachelor being laughed at by a party of pretty girls, told them "You are small potatoes" "We may be small potatoes" cried one of them, "but we are sweet ones"

"Are them all Bibles?" asked a countryman the other day in the registrar's office, pointing to the long volumes of wills up on the shelves. "No, sir," answered one of the clerks, "those are testaments"

An Irishman was once asked to define an Irish bull, to which he replied, "Whenever you see two cows lying down in a field, the one that's standing up is a bull" This very lucid explanation will do.

A grim, bard-headed old judge, after hearing a flowery discourse from a pretentious young barrister, advised him to pluck out the feathers from the wings of his imagination and stick them in the tail of his judgment.

"The mayor of a town in the west of England, questioning the boys at the ragged schools, asked them what were the pumps and vanities of this wicked world. A little boy said, "The mayor and corporation going to church, sir"

A female school teacher, in her advertisement, stated that she was "complete mistress of her own tongue." "If that's the case," said a cautious old bachelor, "she can't ask too much for her services."

"If there is anybody under the influence of heaven that I have an utter excrescence for," says Mrs. Partington, "it is the slanderer, going about like a boy constructor, circulating his calomel upon honest folks."

An Irish gentleman thus accounts for the fact of his countryman making so many bulls: "I suppose tell, if it is not the effect of the climate I fancy, if an Englishman was born in Ireland he would make just as many."

A Scotch blacksmith thus defines metaphysics: "Two men are disputin' thegither—in that's listenin' diana ken what he that's speakin' means, and he that's speakin' diana ken what he's sayin' himself—that's metaphysics.

DOMESTIC LIFE OF ABRAHAM LINCOLN.—We published yesterday the very earnest letter of Rev. Mr. Smith, of East Cambo, Strathmore, Scotland, who during a number of years was pastor of the Presbyterian Churchat Springfield, and with his family, enjoyed the closest and most unreserved association with Mr. Lincoln and his family. The latter bears upon its face the evidence of its own sincerity and truth. It relieves Mr. Lincoln's memory from an unpleasant reflection cast upon it by a reported lecture attributed to Mr. Wm Herndon, of Springfield. In that lecture there is dressed up in a style calculated to attract attention, what purports to be a romance of the unmarried life of Mr. Lincoln, which winds up by the untimely death of a Miss Ann Rutledge, and the burial of her heart in Mr. Lincoln's grave.

This "romance" has had a wide-spread circulation in this country, and Mr Smith found it in a paper published in Scotland, It is to be regretted that such a story was ever made public, and more so that it was not put at rest at the time it made its appearance Mr Lincoln met the lady who, for finally a quarter of a century, was his wife, when she was a girl of only seventeen years of age. She was handsome, accomplished, and full of life. She possessed attractions in his eyes so powerful that in less than three months after their acquaintance, he had become an ardent, persevering and devoted suitor for her hand, and for three years he persisted in the courtship which resulted in what both parties considered and professed to be, a marriage whose highest inducement was the mutual love of each for the other. During the twenty two or three years of married life that followed, he was the fond lover that he had been before marriage; no word or act of unkindness; no word or look or act indicating that his heart was absent, or was buried in some other's grave ever escaped him; had he been the hypocrite and dissembler which modern romance would hold him up to the world as being, his family and friends, his intimates and associates never had the slightest cause to suspect it; and to suppose that during so many years he could hide his sorrows, and conceal the anguish of a broken heart, would be to attribute to him a duplicity utterly foreign to his frank and open-hearted nature. The latter of Mr. Smith is simply as well as true. Neither but justice to the memory of a man who was a faithful and devoted husband, whose heart never grew cold to the wife whom he so warmly loved as a girl, who, as a father, was the centre around whom was gathered the love and affection of children, and who never enjoyed in any position, no matter how exalted, a pleasure like that which he found at his domestic hearthside Mr. Lincoln was never absent from home or from his wife, for more than a day that he did not gratify his own affectionate nature, and the suggestions of his life of love, by sending daily letters of kindly greeting to his wife at home. From the day of his marriage to the day of his death, there never was compliment personal or political, no success or triumph, no event of any kind calculated to gratify his pride or ambition, that his first impulse was not to communicate the fact to his wife, that his enjoyment might be made more perfect by having it shared by her Of this invariable rule adopted by him there are several instances memorable in the history of his public life It is a cruelty to hearts already bruised as it rarely fails to human lot to suffer, and cruel to the memory of a man who was candor and truth personified, to give currency to such idle tales as this now exploded "romance" attributed to Mr. Herndon —Chicago Tribune.

THE EASTERN QUESTION.—A St. Petersburg correspondent writes:

The Eastern question does not become much clearer as the time of action approaches. It is pretty certain though that Austria and France have no idea of consenting to the fair and frank proposition of Russia to promise non intervention in the affair. Austria seems to have taken a step that clearly places her against the proposition of Russia, in opposition to the Christian and in favor of the Turk. It is the first open move she has made to publish her understanding with France in the treatment of great questions that will soon arise It has been for a long time suspected that she was in secret league with France, but so cautiously and craftily she has played her cards that the game has never appeared to the eyes of the world. It is pretty definitely understood here that France will decline to enter into any agreement to observe, with the other great powers, the policy of non intervention in the East and it is likely that the proposed arrangement will fail of success One thing, however, has been gained. England has declared her intention to maintain a policy suggested by Russia, come what may She does not propose to act again the expensive and melancholy role she played in the Crimean war, and will decline to follow the wild lead of Napoleon Prussia, too, has given in her adhesion to the programme, as I have before written you, and Italy will remain a quiet observer of whatever contest may arise in the East in the future Austria agrees with France, and has already sent a strong squadron into the waters of the Aegean, to act with the French squadron already there

Russia is powerless to act against such a powerful combination to that quarter of the globe, on the sea, just now, but she is not insensible to the importance of watching the drift of affairs closely, and preparing for every eventuality On whatever policy she may deem it her interest to pursue, rely upon it she will have the hearty indorsement of Prussia and Great Britain—the latter a passive and neutral friend—the former a vigorous and earnest ally. With lines drawn as I have suggested above, I do not doubt that the Eastern question will be solved to the satisfaction of all who desire to see an end to Asiatic barbarism in Europe

The Mormons are pursuing their work of proselyting among the rustic population of Northern Europe. They travel inland, and coming to a village gather round them a crowd of listeners, to whom they set forth in glowing terms the blessings in store for those who will embrace the religion of the Latter Day Saints, make over to them their property, and take up their residence in the paradise of Utah

Books of Fiction for Children.

The London Quarterly Review has the following sensible article on the growth and development of a child's mind, and we beg all parents to read the article attentively

"The mind of a child says a wise thinker, "is like the acorn its powers are folded up they do not yet appear—but they are all there The memory the judgment, the invention the feeling of right and wrong, are all in his mind even of an infant just born One by one they awake His imagination—one of the earliest powers that awakens within him even before he has passed through the mysteries of play and found out that being naughty differs from being good—must be fed. And fed it will be, either on the make believe talk of his sister Mary nursing her doll, the idle stories of Betsey the gossamonal whom he is naughty about "boogy" and the "blank man" who carries off naughty or bad boys, or about the golden fairy who is to give him taffey and gingerbread—when he is a good By and by, as he grows older his sister Mary reads to him, and at last he learns to read for himself the charming adventures of the Fox and the Crow, Billy-goat Gruff, and the Tailor, or Dick Whittington and Pearls, the delicious history of Puss in Boots, the tragedy of "Blue Beard, or the heroic drama of Jack the Giant killer"

But whichever of these, or a hundred other delightful pages, it be, his faith is boundless Happiest of mortals, for a time at least he can believe all he reads, with the one happy proviso that if it is true, he ought to be, aye, and is, because his sister said so While he is absorbed in the misfortunes of the Fin Soldier, or the Ugly Duck, the breakfast bell is unheard and dinner unheeded—he is feasting in dreamland, on shrubbery in the Giant's Castle, or on those famous cheesecakes of Queen Sheherazad, whose vitalin harm was pepper. Not that he is forgetful of fact, even while in the full pursuit of fiction. Indeed he is always burning for facts He wishes to know what glass is, where Robinson Crusoe was buried, how much gold it takes to make the pebble of a watch, why the sun gets later in June than December, what thunder is, if the end of the rainbow touches the ground, why firing off a cannon once made a man deaf, what sago is, and a thousand other things, which papa not being a walking encyclopedia, is not always ready to tell him And whatever answer he can obtain he is ready to believe implicitly, as long as he shouldn't fairly with.

Yet, though St. George and the Dragon, Ali Baba, Robinson Crusoe, Sinbad the Sailor, are in one sense as true to him as the history of England, there are shades and degrees of belief in his own mind both as regards the possibility of fact and fiction, which he cannot perhaps define, and of which he is scarcely sensible, yet on which he unconsciously acts, setting each narrative or story, tale or fable, romance or chronicle, in its own due place, and giving to each in its own royal favor of approval as good, bad or indifferent.

A child is good sound health is insatiably curious, his thirst for facts of one shape or other is quenchless, and if he never asks questions, and cares nothing for Jack and the Bean Stalk, or the Lad who went to the North Wind, there is a screw loose somewhere; he is in a morbid, unhealthy state of body or mind, probably of both his natural growth and tastes, as a child, are becoming stunted and diseased forced into some narrow, petty channel, where ignorance or bigotry will soon blot out the freshness, grace and light, that are childhood's most precious possessions."

Brown, who examined her case, and at once began to give her treatment, and her sight has been entirely restored I do this to let those who are suffering with diseases of the eyes know where they can obtain a cure It has been three years since her eyes were cured, and they are yet sound.

SALEM, July 21 1860

This is to certify that I was blind for over four months and almost blind for over years and a half, I tried several eye doctors but received no benefit I had almost given my case up as hopeless when fortunately I heard of Dr G W Brown, now of Salem I was induced to try him; he performed a surgical operation on my eyes and gave me treatment I soon began to recover, and in a short time I was perfectly cured I do this in justice to one who rescued me from a fate worse than death and also for the benefit of those who are laboring under similar afflictions that they may know where they can get relief. It is now about eight months since my eyes were cured and they still remain good I can see to read the finest print without difficulty, and my eyes can bear the strongest light without pain

How many thousands of persons, both male and female, are there who are suffering on a miserable existence from the effects of secret indulgences, or from virus absorbed into the system! Send them immediately to the Great Dispensary, and place within their reach those remedies especially for years, and which is certain to cure the most inveterate cases without mercury or any injurious drugs. It is important to those who are afflicted or to those who are interested in the welfare of their friends, to be careful of the many pretended doctors who infest all cities, publishing their skill in curing all diseases in a few days, imposing upon the public by using the names of eminent physicians from Europe and other places. Be therefore careful and make strict inquiry, or you may fall into the hands of those charlatans,
